Attorney General's Office arrests Bear resident for cyberstalking

Members of the public asked to provide information to investigators

Wilmington, DE – On Wednesday, April 15, the Office of the Attorney General, with assistance from University of Delaware Police, New Castle County Police, and Wilmington Police, arrested a 42 year-old Bear man for stalking women using the web. The investigation revealed that, over the past two years, Richard McCullough has used the internet to stalk women in Delaware. McCullough made contact with his victims using the fictitious names of JToms, Kevin, and John.

McCullough was arraigned and committed to Howard Young Correctional Institution for failure to post $50,000 cash bail.

The investigation continues. Members of the public with information about this case are urged to contact Investigator Brian Daly at the Attorney General's Office at 577-8500.

Richard McCullough
